Overview of the Inselhalle Lindau

Modern meetings in the Bavarian island town

With the Inselhalle, Lindau in Lake Constance offers a conference location with a unique atmosphere. Since 2018, the new Inselhalle has been a trendsetting event venue in an extraordinary location. Directly on the shores of Lake Constance in the historic island town of Lindau, the new congress and event location impresses with its spacious glass facades, modern technology and gastronomy. Thanks to 46 room variants and a capacity of more than 2,000 participants, it is suitable for events of different types and sizes. Organisers and conference guests also benefit from a comprehensive event service and the short distances of the Lindau Island.

Outstanding conferences in a unique atmosphere

The charm of the historic island and garden town with its winding alleys and lively squares has been attracting conference participants from all over the world to Lindau for years. Since 2018, the new Inselhalle has provided them with a trendsetting conference building that is second to none - in the middle of the border triangle of Germany-Austria-Switzerland, on the shores of Lake Constance.

The completely renovated and expanded Inselhalle with its copper-coloured roof and light-flooded rooms can accommodate more than 2,000 participants and is the stage for a wide variety of events of different sizes - from conferences and congresses with international appeal, to trade fairs, meetings and company celebrations, to cultural events. Once a year, laureates meet young scientists from all over the world at the Lindau Nobel Laureate Meetings.

Another fixture is the Lindau Psychotherapy Weeks, which attract up to 4,000 participants to Lindau every April. The 18 event rooms of the Inselhalle are equipped with state-of-the-art media and communication technology and can be combined into a total of 46 room variations. The many glass surfaces of the conference building allow visitors a view of the water from different perspectives and create space for ideas, concentration and exchange.

A building with a wide range of design options

A bright, spacious foyer with an area of almost 1,000 square metres welcomes visitors to the Inselhalle. It is suitable as a communication, reception and exhibition area and is connected to the in-house restaurant via the Seefoyer. Both the main foyer and the lakeside foyer lead to the heart of the Inselhalle - the three halls lined with high-quality oak woods, which can be combined to form one large hall. They provide a festive setting for large conferences with over 1,100 guests, banquets or concerts with good acoustics.

Grouped around this core are ten new conference rooms on the ground floor and two more in the basement. The latter can be combined with a third room to form a lounge area of around 650 square metres, which is supplied with daylight via an atrium. The 2,500 square metre Therese-von-Bayern-Platz with direct access to the lake can also be used for outdoor events or accompanying exhibitions.

In-house restaurant and catering

The in-house lakeside restaurant ONU with around 80 - 100 seats indoors is run by Michael Hotz. The restaurateur looks back on many years of congress experience and, together with his team, takes care of the event catering for the Inselhalle's customers - whether it's lunch for large groups of participants or an exclusive evening event. The ONU's sun terrace also has up to 130 seats and invites you to let conference evenings come to an end in a relaxed atmosphere with a view of the small marina on the lakeshore.
